Better Come Dancing

Marley's Ghost

The sky's gonna tremble on the very last day.
There'll be thunder and lightning as the stars fall away.
You can run but you cannot hide, this'll be our last chance.
If this is the last waltz, baby, then we might as well dance.
And we can go dancing, steppin' out across the stars.
'Cause when time comes to an end, then eternity's ours.
We can go dancing, forget all your worries and cares.
Cause when the last ship comes in, we'll all be dancing on air.
I read the report, and it doesn't look good,
Not much time to turn it around, but you know that we could.
You better turn to your neighbor and look him in the eye,
'cause when our gravity fails, we all gotta learn how to fly!
And we can go dancing, steppin' out across the stars.
'Cause when time comes to an end, then eternity's ours.
You better come dancing, forget all your worries and cares.
Cause when the last ship comes in, we'll all be dancing on air.
You can run but you cannot hide, this'll be our last chance.
If this is the last song, baby, then we might as well dance.
And we can go dancing, steppin' out across the stars.
'Cause when time comes to an end, then eternity's ours.
And we can go dancing, forget all your worries and cares.
Cause when the last ship comes in, we'll all be dancing on air.
