Fallen

Jennifer Knapp

Even though they say we have fallen
Doesn't mean that I won't do it twice
Given every second chance
I'd chose again to be with you tonightSorry is often told but hardly ever done
Not with you my love
Not with you my love
Of all the ancient stories that hold a bitter end
Not with you my friend
Not with you my friendI lift you up like a loving cup
Pour down on all the world
And if the fable's strong enough
We'll drink more than our fillEven though they say we have fallen
Doesn't mean that I won't do it twice
Given every second chance
I'd chose again to be with you tonightSo the wind blows cold
I say, "It's crisp and clear"
All for you my dear
All for you my dearAnd though the clouds roll by
I say that in the, in the sky is a blazing sun
Wait, here it comesI lift you up like a loving cup
Pour down on all the world
And if the fable's strong enough
We'll drink more than our fillEven though they say we have fallen
Doesn't mean that I won't do it twice
Given every second chance
I'd chose again to be with you tonightIf all that's left behind
Are the pieces that define
Of the two of us
Born from a wild, wild lustThey lift us up like a loving cup
Pour down on all the world
And if the fable's strong enough
We'll drink more than our fillEven though they say we have fallen
Doesn't mean that I won't do it twice
Given every second chance
I'd chose again to be with you tonight
