Opeth

I arose from the lullaby
Enduring yet another tale
You tempt me again
With your embrace, so tainted Within the night you beckon
Cursing me with every glance Bring me through Carry my empty shadow
And guide me inside your warped labyrinth
To the well of sin
I swear I will always love you Leave me speechless
Release my yearning
The soil I walk is clad with light
Drifting moons thrust me with their rays
And I fall inside I lament this heritage
Cannot bid farewell
The pale face, you went as far as you could go
And from that moment
I witnessed your beauty, felt your death Mine is yours
(Mine is yours)
In the wake of dawn
The mist of morning linger before it leaves Invisible eyes, red reflection
It is you, it is you
Smiling in the [Incomprehensible]
