She Clicks Her Heels

MATT TYLER

Something tells me she's not in Kansas anymore.
She leaves behind the world, walks through the wardrobe door.
Away from Wonderland she's too oblivious to know.
Everyone she's left behind, all broken, tired and low.
Â
Searching high and low for your eyes,
Stories too and fro, full of lies.
Â
Sheâ€™s not alone, she sure has grown, she's living just off Yellow Road.
She's made some friends. Characters you know.
And she's doing well at Emerald School and all the kids think she is cool.
She's got these shoes. Red, they kind of glow.
Â
She clicks her heels; she's in another world....
Â
Third star from the right she passes it all the time.
Her memories kind of faded now but she's happy, she's fine.
But every now and then there's a flicker of the past.
Can't remember how or when 'cos it happened oh so fast...

Lyrics submitted by Dave Lloyd.

Lyrics provided by
https://damnlyrics.com/