Elysium

Bear's Den

Brother, do you believe in an afterlife
Our souls both collide
In some great Elysium
Way up in the sky
Free from our shackles, or chains,
Our mouths, our brains
We'll open all the gate
We will walk careless
Straight into the lightI've never felt so enlightened
Everything page I turn
I only find myself
Feeling more alone
Posing questions to a silent universe
My very thoughts occur
They just seem to multiply
Forever in my mindBrother, don't grow up
Brother, please never grow upJust hold on against the night
Guard your hope with your life
For the darkness, she will come
Oh, and you have nowhere left to runOpen up your arms
That are wider than mine
Allow me to seeJust hope that age
Does not erase what you see
Don't let bitterness become you
Your only hopes are all within youJust hold on against the night
Guard your hope with your life
