Can't You See

America

Written by dan peek, ©1976 Found on hideaway and highway. Alone, sitting here on my own There's no place I'd rather be Or so it seemsHome, miles away from home And there's no place I'd rather be Can't you see? You hold your life in your hands And no one takes from a man Who gives the best that he can To make someone understandI've flown miles away from home And there's no place I'd rather be Can't you see?You hold your life in your hands And no one takes from a man Who gives the best that he can To make someone understandHome, miles away from home And there's no place I'd rather be Can't you see, can't you see, can't you see? Can't you see, can't you see, can't you see? Can't you see, can't you see, can't you see?
