

Heart Turns To Stone

Foreigner

The days and the nights, I sit around and wondering where can she be?

I'm hoping that she will appear out of nowhere, but you fail to see

All the hurt inside, the wounded pride

Ooh what she went through for you

You cheated and lied as her love slowly died

And the heart just broke in two

When she was with you, all along

Behind you right or wrong

She tried to hold on, hold on

But you went too far and she's gone

Now it's over and her heart turns to stone

No time for pity, when her heart turns to stone

She cries a little, as her heart turns to stone

She's that kind of woman, she'll do fine on her own

When she thought was a game

A game you were winning, wouldn't go your way

Now you've lost what you had and your back to beginning

It's the price you have to pay

When she was with you, all along

Behind you right or wrong

She tried to hold on, hold on

But you went too far and she's gone

Now it's over and her heart turns to stone

No time for pity, when her heart turns to stone

She cries a little, as her heart turns to stone

She's that kind of woman, she'll get by on her own

She hides the pain, but her heart turns to stone

No time for pity, when her heart turns to stone

She cries sometimes, as her heart turns to stone

She's that kind of woman, she'll get by on her own

Yeah it's over and her heart turns to stone

Don't look for pity now, when her heart turns to stone

Listen to her cry, listen to her cry

She's a woman now, ooh it's a sad thing to see

To see a heart turn to stone, the heart of the woman

A heart turned to stone
