

In The Rain

Midnight Oil

Sorry I am for the hurt I caused
Grieving I still do over careless words
As I move freely to a place
The debris I left behind comes back into my day
Out of time disconnected
Plagued by senses sweet desire
Out of time, out of time deluded
I plunged my hand into the mother load of love
In the rain calling out his name
I call, yes I call
In the rain falls on my shame it falls
Yes it falls in the rain
Life picked me up this morning and thrust me to the world
Like a child I'm hurtled forward
Dreaming things anew, sights I see sound true
All the places, open faces gracing everything I view
In the rain falls on my shame
I call, yes I call
In the rain falling on my shame
I call, yes, I call
In the rain calling out his name
I fall, yes I fall, in the rain, oh, in the rain
