Umphrey's McGee

I'm still not able to understand
I'm struggling here to deny it
If I knew this is all we had
I wouldn't have said goodbye thenIt's only water, no spirit broken
But all these things we've held on left unspoken
Still the thought's enough to make me choke againI had a friend who couldn't sit still
He would think until his hands began to spill things
And every morning he woke up
Never thought he'd done enough the night beforeAnd it's hard to break the habits that we make
But don't you know that life could take it from you anyway?
If I could say it again I'd make you remember when
All the things we shared were unimpaired by anything
