Rain Comes Crashing Down (Jack Blades)

Night Ranger

So you say you've written letters
And you've mailed them to yourself
And through the politics of compromise
You've left them lying upon your shelfAt the risk of seeming crazy
I've set off to find your cure
With apologies for knowing
It's a difficult time of yearAnd the shadows you leave behind you
Are like the rain that's crashing down
When there's no one left around
I'll be the rain that's crashing
Rain that's crashing downSo you say we're going nowhere
With the fear of wasting youth
Through the different times and with different eyes
I see it every change in youAnd now we've reached the point of knowing
That in love we're never sure
Still I'm holding on tight to memories
And there you go walking out the doorAnd the shadows you leave behind you
Are like the rain that's falling down
And your halo was left in town
And still the rain comes crashing down
And the sadness you leave behind youLike shadows across the ground
I'll be the rain that's crashing
Rain that's crashing downLike shadows across the ground
I'll be the rain that's crashing
Rain that's crashing downRain comes crashing down
Rain comes crashing down
Rain comes crashing down
Rain comes crashing downRain comes crashing down
Rain comes crashing down
Rain comes crashing downThe rain
The rain
The rain
