Space In My Heart

Bernhoft

Floating right by me in a velvet dress She seems so totally out of the place in outer space I must be delusional, a real head case because the lunar surface is the wrong address in such a dress But i saw her eyes, she was real, was she wearing that dress just for me and i'm all inside out nowthere is a space in my heart an infinite casing of darkness there is a space in my heart waiting to be filled by her I surfed on comets through cosmic debris, still here I am a alone at the sea of tranquility without a chance to get home the only place for me is inside this helmet that i'm living in and breathing in but i saw her eyes, she was real, did she sky rocket out here just for me and I'm all inside out nowthere is a space in my heart
an infinite casing of darkness
dark matter clustered in a phenix way implosions on a galactic scale
an infinite casing of darkness
i see her face in the stars a supernovas in pulsars
I can't get out of it
