Further into You

Cardinal Moon

I was falling threw a mist of evening threw the lights deceiving
eyes defeverd and still i haven't landed never would have planned this catch me in your bloom you were taken by a love that started eroding we both know where it is going but it is always hard to leave this is quicksand under me we're walking pretend its only talking pretend that you can breath and all that i have ever known is how to be alone

and all that i could ever want is a heart that's someone else

I was turning against my judgment all into nothing leaving you to be always tongue tied wrapped in whats familiar even if it kills you i wish you could believe we were lost out in the deep pro founded by the distance and we drowned served our sentence and its hard to turn around when the wieght pulls you down, your sinking beneath the thoughts we're thinking beneath the weight of dream

and all that i could ever want

We've gone too far beneath the stars its all when its dark where we meet and i mean i light that you cant be

and all that i could ever want
