Ordinary People

Linda Eder

Here we are, two ordinary people in love
We once were solitary people just crossing paths
Looking for adventures to live onYou and I, we have talked so many times before
But in a moment there was something more
Now I can't remember feeling any other wayI can only say no passion ever could be equal
Living life, knowing that we're free
To simply be two ordinary people in loveI'd almost given up dreaming
Caught in my daily routine
But fate with her magical scheming
I began to slip into the cavern of your kissIn our eyes memories from someplace
Sometime we rest in each other's arms
To unwind one breath
One heart beating, sharing our emotionIn the end when I question if I have a clue
I know I can always talk to you
Can't think of a better ending to my dayHear me when I say no passion ever could be equal
Living life, knowing that we're free to Simply be two ordinary people in love
