

Bury the Floors

Scattered Trees

I was afraid that what I really meant to say would fall down upon you But you heard me well I wondered if I really felt like I was supposed to It's a house that I built you to fall
We started to walk then we stood up to crawl
So bury the floors and burn down the walls
To find ourselves by morning I wish you could see you're doing better than you think I would not lie, no I could not It's a house that I built you to fall
We started to walk then we stood up to crawl
So bury the floors and burn down the walls
To find ourselves by morning The stars, the stars
And the light on your face
Replace the words on a page
To remind me, you remind me of The stars, the stars
And the light on your face
Replace the words on a page
To remind me, you remind me of The stars, the stars, the stars, the stars, the stars are up and they're shining on your face The stars, the stars, the stars are up and they're shining on your face
