Search Your Heart

Steve Forbert

The world is too much with you all of the time
You got no space for grace inside of your mind
Somethings can't be conquered so your thoughts all sayin'
But if you search your heart you'll find a wayCompared to how things were here something is wrong
But we're here now and that means then he is now goneDon't wanna take gloom for granted
Don't wanna bridge time to time
And if you search your heart you'll ease your mindYou know that those golden days of fall give way to
Frozen nights of howlin' sounds of wind that have their way
No matter what those silver bells of Christmas tell you
But remember what you don't knowAnd don't take it all too hard there may be things behind
Your skies can show you sights no eyes can see
No words can say so just behold these golden days
These days of fall these golden days these golden
Clear blue autumn daysYou walk on old childhood sidewalks looking for clues
Till someone stairs and swears you couldn't be you
You've been down the long way you know times are tough
But if you search your heart you'll find I say
If you search your heart you'll find I say
If you search your heart you'll find enough
