

Monday Morning

Maria Mena

Monday mornin' came too soon.
It's entering my forgotten room,
Disguised as the morning sun
And I should be
On the run,
But I'm here.
Waiting for you,
To come and rescue me
From this awful blue.
Looks like another day,
In another way
Through another place.
Too many lonely days.
I'm not here for sure,
Just here for more.
You walked through that door,
'Cause I said I didn't need you anymore.
Anymore.
Monday morning caught me by surprise.
Covering up my weary eyes.
Only helpless,
Not yet torn.
Too many tears I've worn,
But I'm here
Waiting for you,
Too come and rescue me,

From this awful blue.
Looks like another day,
In another way
Through another place.
Too many lonely days.
I'm not here for sure,
Just here for more.
You walked through that door,
'Cause I said I didn't need you anymore,
But I said a lot of stupid stuff, for sure.
There's nothing I want more,
This morning.

Looks like another day,
In another way
Through another place.
Too many lonely days.
I'm not here for sure,
Just here for more.
You walked through that door.
Looks like another day,
In another way
Through another place.
Too many lonely days.
I'm not here for sure,
Just here for more.
You walked through that door.
