

The Highwayman (Remastered)

Stevie Nicks

Alas he was the highwayman
The one that comes and goes
And only the highway-woman
Keeps up with the likes of those
And she in all her magic
With hands as quick as light
Took him to be a challenge
And went into the night And he in all his glory
Was far ahead of her
But she was never sorry
For wishes that would burn
Enter competition
She chases beneath the moon
Her horse is like a dragonfly
She is just a fool And she wonders is this real
Or does she just want to be Queen
And he fights the way he feels
Is this the end of the dream And then he sees her coming
Heartbeats on the wind
Considers slowing down
But then, he could never win
And she, out in the distance
Sees him against the sky
A pale and violent rider
A dream begun in wine And she wonders is this real
Or does she just want to be Queen
And he fights the way he feels
Is this the end of the dream A dream as the thunder wakes her
And her highwayman disappears
On a life already lived before
In eyes welled with tears Today and still today they ride
Will they ever win
He the glory,
She the love,
Still they try again
He the glory,
She the love,
Still they try again
He the glory,

She the love,
And still they, try, again

Songwriters
NICKS, STEVIE Published by

Lyrics © Sony/ATV Music Publishing LLC Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnyrics.com/>