

Listen Up

Balthazar

There is no one to say: "I can't get in your head"

But I, well, I can see the night which you wed
You're trying so many notes and joining with the chore
But know I was the one that will clear your throat
Hold your sign before I get time of your age to turn a blind eye
Hold your sign before I get time of your age to turn a blind eye
Now listen up, now listen once again before we start this, before we begin

This is a match to win, it was never meant to say anything.

But listen up, now listen once again, I know you're looking for the truth,
But then in another poets in for all return I ask stop listening
Hold your sign before I get time of your age to turn a blind eye
a blind eye

Hold your sign before I get time of your age to turn a blind eye
Now listen up, now listen once again before we
start this, before we begin

This is a match to win, it was never meant to say anything.

But listen up, now listen once again, I know you're looking for the truth,
But then in another poets in for all return I ask stop listening
Now listen up, now listen once again before we
start this, before we begin

This is a match to win, it was never meant to say anything.

But listen up, now listen once again, I know you're looking for the truth,
But then in another poets in for all return I ask stop listening
