

Oh How She Changed

Strawbs

Strawbs - Oh, How She Changed
She leaned forward in the lamplight

 In her eyes an amber glow

 She was promising the earth

 And yet somehow saying no

 We talked of pleasant summer days

 Kew Gardens, Hampton Court

 The jewellers where we bought

The ring that held us close together.Oh how she changed with every passing day.In the swirling misty morning

 As the day began to break

 In the heavy dew her footsteps

I am floundering in her wake.Oh how she changed with every passing day.The shutters of indifference

 Have close to bar the view

A person I once knew.Oh how she changed with every passing day.
