Permanent Monday

Jordin Sparks

Falling leaves like a blanket at my feet There's a canopy of stars and I just miss you like crazy Suddenly the world's too big and the hours move too slow And I just wish that you were holding me nearSeven days, it feels like a year You whisper through the line, you know I miss you like crazy So baby can you steal a plane, a boat, the fastest train? You know it just don't feel the same when you're gone'Cause every time you go away the sunshine starts to fade Frozen by the hands of time into a permanent Monday Take me back into your arms and don't ever let me go 'Cause when I see you walk through that door I'm not lost anymore, I'm home, I'm homeI won't sleep until you're finally next to me Can't wait to breathe you in, don't wanna waste my time dreaming I just wanna treat your name like a whisper on my skin And never have to say goodbye again'Cause every time you go away the sunshine starts to fade Frozen by the hands of time into a permanent Monday Take me back into your arms and don't ever let me go 'Cause when I see you walk through that door I'm not lost anymore, I'm home'Cause when I feel you right here close to me Everything is where it's supposed to be, babyEvery time you go away the sunshine starts to fade Frozen by the hands of time into a permanent Monday Take me back into your arms and don't ever let me go 'Cause when I see you walk through that door
