

Carry You Under

Hannah Cohen

You wouldn't see her
You just walk straight on by
And the lake would freeze over
And her heart would start to cry
She took a one last breath in only for nothing to come out
And there you were Carry her under
But she didn't want to drown
Oh my, my love has gone
And so crying is the night when I'm alone
Don't you feel that her arms die to hold you as tight?
Can't you see in her arms that something isn't right?
Behind those eyes something isn't right
Behind those eyes
When you wake up in the morning you won't feel or see a thing
You'll just remember the voices of the sirens when they sing
And you take one last breath
but nothing will come out
And they will carry you under but you wouldn't drown
Oh come on
Don't you recover her?
Come on. Won't you just give her your love?
And don't you feel that her arms die to hold you as tight?
Can't you see in her arms that something isn't right?
Behind those eyes something isn't right
Behind those eyes Because my love is gone

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>