Subdivision

Ani DiFranco

White people are so scared of black people
They bulldoze out to the country

And put up houses on little loop-d-loop streets

And while America gets its heart cut right out of its chestThe Berlin wall still runs down main street Separating east side from westAnd nothing is stirring, not even a mouse

In the boarded up stores and the broken down houses

So they hang colorful banners off all the street lamps

Just to prove they got no manners, no mercy, and no senseAnd I wonder then what it will take for my city to rise First we admit our mistakes and then we open our eyes

The ghost of old buildings are haunting

Parking lots in the city of good neighbors that history forgotI remember the first time I saw someone lying on the cold street

I thought, "I can't just walk past you, this can't just be true"

But I learned by example to just keep moving my feet

It's amazing the things that we all learn to doSo we're led by denial like lambs to the slaughter

Serving empires of style and carbonated sugar water

And the old farm road's a four-lane that leads to the mall

And my dreams are all guillotines waiting to fall

And I wonder then, what it will take for my country to riseFirst we admit our mistakes and then we open our eyes

'Til nation's last taker succumbs to one last dumb decision And America, the beautiful is just one big subdivision
