Forest Green

Andy Kim

Forest green is the color of this new April morning and Iâ€™d swear it was summer today

As I sit in the shadow of a tree on a hillside Iâ€™m deep in the hollow of a love that just died

She became not much kinder than a stranger
And in my heart I knew
Sheâ€™d soon be gone
She said that married life would chain her
But in my heart I knew it all along

Found what I could believe in
In the river of all her smiles
And love was in season to try

Like fallen leaves on a sidewalk
Like tears for a winter rain
I know Iâ€™m needinâ€™ a long talk to find the way to me again

She became not much kinder than a stranger
And in my heart I knew
Sheâ€™d soon be gone
She said that married life would chain her
But in my heart I knew it all along
