Day of Reckoning

Roddy Frame

Satellite town shook up youth
I used to dream of an unshakeable truth Something I could fly my flag upon and never need to give inBut now I'm all through taking swipes
I got promoted and I lost my stripes I'm ditchin' all I've been bitchin' about and letting love come inI used to walk down lonely street Past the bars and the grand hotels Checking out all the beautiful people who were checking in Now I walk like the street is mine
Hand in hand with our dreams entwined
Baby, you brought about my day of reckoningI see the sun paint the whole town red
And softly show me back to you instead I'm confessin' all my sins and I'm reachin' with a higher aimStrolling down by the marketplace Hangin' music on a half - seen face But rollin' round in my head is the sound of
"I Heard Her Call My Name"What's the deal with the fear I feel, is it the real me squealin'?
On the one on the run from the sum of my heart and soul
Who'd take a trip round the universe
In my head while my world got worse
And disengage, slip my stays, float away until I'd lost control
