

Distant Scream (The Monotonous)

Dust Bolt

There he stands on this mountain still his dreams don't seem burglarized he spreads his wings to eternity, this shattered man, his shivered eyes The sky is slowly turning black, the birds don't sing, they cry he tries to still the agony summoned by time Take me the power to see my future, my misery Like silent drops, thoughts fade away Like broken glass, he lost all his ways deep inside he's taking back - memories seem blind Too long, too far far from home like fabric - teared apart Take me the power to see my future, my misery Too many days the flame died as the dream did still exist Longing for rest, seems like I need a break from my own intentions, from my own being Everything he gave, nothing he would take words cant grasp relation, I'm leaving this place Broken hope of existence's past a life in a foreign time the will a thousands strong the pain ends , he dies My past, my misery took me the power to be A Distant scream..
