

Summer Rain

Anna Ternheim

Last summer was mad, remember the rain
I know people complained I had something else in mind
Not the sound of rain against my window pane
All I could hear was you hammering in my head
Fall like a wave against a rock
Leave with a rush or get crushed
You never know until after the shock
When you wake up, what's broken what's not
One day I don't know how my whole life evolved
Around You, my Lord, believing was not enough
You said I was a hole of desperate need
And no love in the world, not even Yours could satisfy me
That's when the troubles began, disasters came
One by one I nearly drowned in that summer rain
Fall like a wave against a rock
Leave with a rush or get crushed
You never know until after the shock
When you wake up, what's broken what's not
We fall like waves against the rock
Leave with a rush or get crushed
You never know until after the shock
When you wake up, what's broken what's not
When you wake up, what's broken what's not
