In Memory

Hidden in Plain View

This feeling never dies, the fever never breaks
It sinks into your skin, and drips across your face
It speaks to me, telling me your terrified of this disease
Cause you look so weak, as it's slipping through your body
And tearing through meAnd these are your last words, "I'm sorry"
Right before my eyes, can't believe this is goodbye
Keep staring right into my eyes, and look at me for the last timeSo empty but your lies are filled of empathy
Be careful with your words, save your energy
Speak to me, cause I'm so terrified
I know whats happening, be strong for me
Because it's so easy to die, when it's so hard to breatheTo see you suffering,
Oh my god I think its killing meAnd these are your last words, "I'm sorry"
Right before my eyes, can't believe this is goodbyeIf this is the last time, I've never been so terrified
If this is the last time, I'll never look in your eyes
