

Blessing in Disguise

Susan Ashton

In the deep of the dark, you fell in as the heart
Of your world went down in flames
To a cauldron of pain, seeing no way outAnd as you walked through the fire
Losing even desire it was like a dying swan
To look at you then but look at you nowYou have found a new lease on life
A stronger step and a curious calm on your face
That you wear as if to sayYou can rise from the ashes again
You can rise to the morning that breaks in your eyes
For what looked like your heart's demise
Has turned out to be a blessing in disguiseIt has worked for the good, like you heard that it could
But it was hard, so hard to believe
Standing among the ruins of a dreamBut from here looking back, you can see clearly that
You can gain from things that you lose
And learn many ways by many meansYou have been an inspiration to me
And all the volumes of hope your revival can speak
Will always say to meYou can rise from the ashes again
You can rise to the morning that breaks in your eyes
For what looked like your heart's demise
Has turned out to be a blessing in disguiseYou can rise from the ashes again
You can rise to the morning that breaks in your eyes
For what looked like your heart's demise
Has turned out to be a blessing in disguise
It's turned out to be a blessing in disguise
