Fall Apart

The Mavericks

The story of you and I has beautiful memories
Till loneliness and weary-seized
Start keeping them company
As soon as they ll gather around
Along comes misery
There we go again, here we go again
So if an old friend of mine comes knocking up on my door
All I can tell him now he s already heard before
It s better to love and lose, than never have planned at all
For sometimes losers are the only ones who win
I d rather fall apart than never know and loving you
For every broken heart, another lover once it comes to near
And never be the home that gets me through eternity
Along with all the memories that belong to you and meThat you are part of me
The game is been played
And I m just shy of a victory
The heartaches have carried on, will be soon history
Let s hope the world is full of losers in the end
I d rather fall apart than never know and loving you
For every broken heart, another lover once comes too near
And never be the home that gets me through eternity
Along with all the memories that belong to you and me
I d rather fall apart than never know and loving you
For every broken heart, another lover once comes too near
And never be the home that gets me through eternity
Along with all the memories that belong to you and me.

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/