

What I Already Know

Kyle Lionhart

Jesus, I feel lonely now
Gave this away to a lonely town
To all the friends who let me down,
Substance to get high that stay ground,
Guess this has shown me how Much I can take with no-one around.
I'm just trying to make you proud,
You're not always around. I missed a little time in the faith that we hold,
Should have shot the Christians up that we know,
I heard that holding back only gets you control,
Just a reminder of what I already know,
Drag myself to a worship house
To win or to loose for this self doubt,
I can't seem to work you out,
I beg myself for another chance,
Confused at who I'm asking,
is my head or heart dance,
I can't see where I stand
You're not always right, I missed a little time in the faith that we hold,
Should have shot the Christians up that we know,
I heard that holding back only gets you control,
Just a reminder of what I already know, This empty room gets tired,
As I stretch out to reach her,
This burden's old, it wakes up,
I hold head my head too high,
As I fight with this moment,
The world feels faster than my brain.
I missed a little time in the faith that we hold,
Should have shot the Christians up that we know,
I heard that holding back only gets you control,
Just a reminder,
Just a reminder,
Just a reminder of what I already know,
