Second Skin

Danielle Parente

In my Golden days, I would walk all day and night until dark.
Iâ€™d reroute my aimless course, one thousand times, searching for Sparks fly, I close my eyes and fall down, make no sounds, I cry
Til I am dry, pick myself up, I open my eyes to find what Iâ€™m searching for
So this must be my second skin
Shielding me from the state that Iâ€™m in Iâ€™ve peeled all my layers off
Exposing all I have left in his arms
I breathe in, I breathe out slow
I feel it now, part the clouds
Iâ€™m warm from head to toe
I let go
Look up to the sky, I find I know which way to go
I breathe in, I breathe out slow
I feel it now, part the clouds
Iâ€™m warm from head to toe, I let it go
Look up to the sky, I find know which way to go
