Until The Judgment Day

Hawthorne Heights

You're hollow and shallow
All the cowards said in silence
It's so hard to swallow
When you're someone that nobody wantsI'm the one asking questions here
About all the devils and tyrants
I hope you hear me loud and clear
I'll be the only one speaking outJust call my name out loud
Just call my name
When it feels like you're slipping away
Don't look back, don't you ever look back
Until we meet againJust call my name
When it feels like you're slipping away
Don't look back, don't you ever look back
Until the Judgment dayWe're battered and broken
All the members said in frustration
We're not getting any younger here
So how about a declarationJust call my name out loud
Just call my name
When it feels like you're slipping away
Don't look back, don't you ever look back
Until we meet againJust call my name
When it feels like you're slipping away
Don't look back, don't you ever look back
Until the Judgment dayBattered and broken
These words are spoken in despair
We're battered and broken
These words are spoken in despair
And you don't even careWe're battered and broken
These words are spoken in despair
And you don't even careWe're battered and broken
These words are spoken in despair
And you don't even careJust call my name
When it feels like you're slipping away
Don't look back, don't you ever look back
Until the Judgment dayJust call my name
When it feels like you're slipping away
Don't look back, don't you ever look back
Until we meet againJust call my name
When it feels like you're slipping away

Don't look back, don't you ever look back
Until the Judgment day
