

On The Way Home

John Mayer

The summer's over,
this time is closing,
they're waving people out of the ocean, we have the feeling,
like we were floating,
we never noticed,
where time was going. Do you remember, when we first got here,
the days were longer,
the nights were hot here.
Now it's September,
the engine's started,
you're empty handed,
and heavy hearted. But just remember on the way home, (ohhhooohoo)
That you were never meant to feel alone. It takes a little while, but you'll be fine, and have good time come down the line. You'll go back to love that's waiting, I'll unpack in a rented room, how's that life you swear you're hating? grass is greener that makes two. But just remember on the way home, (ohhhooohoo)
That you were never meant to feel alone. But just look me up, get back on the bus, I'll see you next week if you're needin' my trust. Life ain't short but it sure is small, you get forever but nobody at all. Life ain't short but it sure is small, you get forever but nobody at all. They don't come often and they don't stay long (ohhhooohoo) But just remember
on the way home,
(ohhhooohoo)
That you don't ever have to feel alone. But just stay on the run, get off the grid,
and hide yourself out like you know I did, and if you might find that your running is done, a little bit of heaven never hurt no one.
