

Another Like You

Sean Fournier

She's got a face that makes you lose your place, yeah,
when you're reading in your chair.
She's got a laugh the girls would kill to have, yeah,
simply 'cause it's so contagious.
In time I've come to realize

I will never find another like you.
Oh, it's true.
No matter what I do.

I could search the world until I turn blue,
But baby, what's the use?
There ain't no one like you.

She's got a smile that just goes on for miles and miles like an endless summer and when she's gone, the whole world crashes down on me.
Excuse me while I run for cover.
In time I've come to realize

I will never find another like you.
Oh, it's true.
No matter what I do.

I could search the world until I turn blue,
But baby, what's the use?
There ain't no one like you.

All my life my heart's been stranded.
On my sleeve it has been branded.
I could search the whole world over and still walk home so empty-handed.
Take the world that I've been tossed in,
but leave the eyes that I've been lost in
'cause I believe that they have helped me see

I will never find another like you.
Oh, it's true.
No matter what I do.
I could search the world until I turn blue,
But baby, what's the use?
There ain't no one like you.

Lyrics submitted by Sean.

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnlyrics.com/>