Dear Home Town

Great Big Sea

No one knows what's waiting where you go
Nothings certain but the fact that you're leaving
But still you roam from the straight and narrow road
Riding nothing but the lies that you believe inFrame after frame, the pictures still remain
Photographs of all the hearts you've broken
Frozen in time are the ghosts you left behind
Waiting for the words you left unspokenDear home town, I never meant to let you down
When I sold my soul for a song

The dreams are to blame, they still linger and remain

In the heart of a child who's been gone, dear home townTell the girl, it's a wide and wondrous world

Room enough to leave a life your hating

The highway runs both ways and there's seat's left on the train

If you take it to the station, I'll be waitingTell my ma that I miss her lovin' smile

Tell my father that I really miss his laughter

Tell my sisters and brothers, my friends and all the others

That we'll meet in the sweetest hereafter
