The Game

Amy Macdonald

Why did I dream last night?
Why did I not see the light?
'Cause here and now is what I've been waiting for. All my life, this is
What I was born to do. No sacrifice, I wouldn't give it up for you.
And set fire to my heart then tear my world apart, just like you always do.
And give, give me just a taste. Then take it all away, I'm lost in the Game, the game you call fame.
Why did I think there was something more?
Why did it feel different to the years before?
'Cause here and now is what I've been waiting for. All my life, this is

What I was born to do. No sacrifice, I wouldn't give it up for you.
Set fire to my heart then tear my world apart, just like you always do.
And give, give me just a taste. Then take it all away, I'm lost in the Game, the game you call fame.
The game you call fame.
And set fire to my heart then tear my world apart, just like you always do.
And give, give me just a taste. Then take it all away, I've lost in the Game, the game you call fame.
