In Flames

Lungley

Those cocaine kisses make my lips numb, murmur the words so we can begin.
Tell me that you want only my love, we're drowning in your vodka sin.

There's light in your eyes,
but a darkness in your heart.

And an angels gonna die tonight,
and heaven will forget to cry,
in flames our names were sworn,
from flames we both were born.

Collecting my tears in your teacups,
blink eyelashes made of tin.
Don't wipe her lipstick of your mouth,
'cause I know were you have been.

There's light in your eyes,
but a darkness in your heart.

And an angels gonna die tonight,
and heaven will forget to cry,
in flames our names were sworn,
from flames we both were born.

And an angels gonna die tonight,
and heaven will forget to cry,
in flames our names were sworn,
from flames we both were born.

Lyrics provided by
https://damnlyrics.com/