Wrecking Ball

Jill Phillips

Just when my tears were falling deep enough to drown
Down in the valley of the shadow of a doubt
When I gave up that's when
He came to lift me out and set me highWhen I saw it as a gift of matchless worth
I started thinking it was something I deserved
He pulled the rug from underneath
Without a word and left me dryPiece together these little mysteries
It isn't hard to see the writing on the wall
Triumph and tragedy, only God can be
Both the builder and the wrecking ballHe gave them freedom and a fertile promise land
They took for granted their deliverance at hand
Thirty-nine years later
They're still walking through that sand
