Individual Thought Patterns

Death

So quick to judge So easily we forget What it's like to be dissected Where feelings are tossed asideLike a drug it feeds the imagination of minds That go unparalyzed Followers to the leaders of mass hypnotic corruption That live their lives only to criticize Where is the invisible line that we must draw To create individual thought patternsPrisoners of mental deception Be free within singular judgment Twisting words to control the masses To cover up one's self insecuritiesLike a drug it feeds the imagination of minds That go unparalyzed Followers to the leaders of mass hypnotic corruption That live their lives only to criticize Where is the invisible line that we must draw To create individual thought
