

No One Left

The Nightwatchman

Each one had a father.
There's no one left.
A name and a mother.
No one left. Each one had a dream, a prayer on their breath.
The world's gone black.
No one left. On the streets of Manhattan,
a dusty wind blows
letters and wishes,
a girl with a rose. On the streets of Baghdad,
a dusty wind blows
letters and wishes,
a girl with a rose. Each one had a father.
There's no one left.
A name and a mother.
No one left. Each one had a dream,
a prayer on their breath.
The world's gone black.
No one left. Fire and vengeance in the New York sky above stole my angel, stole my true love. Fire and vengeance in the Baghdad sky above stole his angel,
stole his true love. Each one had a father.
There's no one left.
A name and a mother.
No one left. Each one had a dream,
a prayer on their breath.
The world's gone black.
I look up at the sky.
Will my world go black
in the blink of an eye?
He stands out in the desert.
He looks up at the sky.
Will his world go black in the blink of an eye? Each one had a father.
There's no one left.
A name and a mother.

No one left.Each one had a dream,
a prayer on their breath.
The world's gone black.
No one left.Each one had a wish.
Each one had a home.
Each one had a name,
a name and a rose.
