

Afraid

Ty Tabor

Afraid

It must feel pure to be so sure

 About every little thing

But there's no cure for that angst of yours

 That tugs at you like a string

Because you're afraid, afraid to know

 To know the answer

'Cause you're afraid that it will burn

 You're afraid to learn

A nervous tic, you're being tricked

 By somebody else's god

A little bit sick and a whole lot addicted

 There's another crack in the facade

Because you're afraid, afraid to see

 To see the reason

'Cause you're afraid the tide has turned

 And you're afraid to learn

Because you're afraid, afraid to hear

 To hear the accusations

'Cause you're afraid of what you've earned

 You're afraid to learn

Why suffer for nothing?

 Suffer for something
