Slumville Sunrise

Jake Bugg

The wind keeps beating on my window
I haven't slept all night
That drum just keeps on bangin'
They must be buzzin' out their minds

Like bees in a hive, tell me when the morning arrives This place is just not for me

I say it all the time

My friends they just ignore me tell me never mind Waiting all your life on a slumville sunriseSlumville sunrise

Nobody cares or looks twice

Shine away in the morning across this place I was born in Every bruise every flower illuminated by the dawnin'My face upon the concrete

The dirt is in my mouth I clench my fists and feet I'm trying to cry out loud

Make a sound, but something is keeping me downThis place is just not for me I say it a thousand times

My friends they just ignore me tell me never mind

Waiting all your life on a slumville sunriseSlumville sunrise

Nobody cares or looks twice

Shine away in the morning across this place I was born in

Every bruise every flower illuminated by the dawnin'This place is just not for me I say it all the time

My friends they just ignore me tell me never mind

Waiting all your life on a slumville sunriseSlumville sunrise

Nobody cares or looks twice

Shine away in the morning across this place I was born in

Every bruise every flower illuminated by the dawnin'
