

The Whitest Lie

Bayside

If I lied, said I was fine, would that mean anything?
The more you know, the less you eventually find out
Back in school they never said the world was split up into sides
And they called them those who kill and those who die
And if living is a vice, I wish you no virtue
What could go wrong?
Hold me close tonight, say that it's alright, even if it's not.
Of all the lies I've told in my life,
To promise I would never lead you on,
Would be the whitest one.
With providence would recommend you come out to anything
With uneasy lies, the head that wears the crown
And to which lobby is it's craft, is if you have to choose a pill
If you haven't learned that yet my friend, you will
And if living is a vice, I wish you no virtue
What could go wrong?
Hold me close tonight, say that it's alright, even if it's not.
Of all the lies I've told in my life,
To promise I would never lead you on,
Would be the whitest one.
Be honest, cause heaven knows if I fail at this I'd probably fail at anything.
And my head is spins, sing about lot a darker
Nobody was listening
Hold me close tonight, say that it's alright, even if it's not.
Of all the lies I've told in my life,
To promise I would never lead you on,
Would be the whitest one.
