Wavelength

Windbreaker

You put me out.
A trace of smoke left in the ceiling, I hang around.
Hoping that one day you'll need me.
Tell me, was it worth the price you paid to kill me?
Or was it all just fucking up?

I know, it's harder than I'll show.
To lay awake right beside her.
These feelings that I hold, burn through my hands and remind me.
Burn through my hands and...

Break me down.
Weâ€™re not only temporary, please stay.
I wanna fall back into your wavelength, your arms, your eyes.
I daydream that maybe you won't be gone forever.

And after everything I told you in my head you still wanna go, you wanna go.
And after everything I told you in my head you still wanna go, you wanna go.

I wanna fall back into your wavelength.

Lyrics Submitted by Wonderbringer'sLife

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/