

Faith in Our Friends

Juliana Hatfield

Love comes and goes out the window
Lovers ask too much
You're always not something enough
Or you're just too, too honest, too mad or too blue But your friends think you're just right the way you are
They don't hold it against you if you got a stormy heart
And if you find that you've lost all hope in men
You can still have faith in your friends The last one really let you down, he stuck you in that place alone
He was weak when he needed to be strong
He never visited and he never even called
And he knew how hard it was for you You promised yourself that you wouldn't fall for the wrong guy
And now you need someone to pull the needle from your eye
Every time I say I can't go through this again
I go back to my faith in my friends There for you in the middle of the night
With blurry eyes you're grief stricken
And you can curse and cry
With no consequences or conditions Your friends think you're just right the way you are
They don't hold it against you if you got a stormy heart
And if you find that you've lost all hope in men
You can still have faith in your friends You promised yourself that you wouldn't fall for the wrong guy
And now you need someone to pull the needle from your eye
Every time I say I can't go through this again
I thank God for my faith in my friends, faith in my friends

Songwriters

Juliana Hatfield Published by

JULIANA HATFIELD MUSIC Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>