Railway

The Red Cannons

she was born on the railway tracks i was left all alone and the best that i had to give
still reminded her of home (...) (...) so wrong
and never leave a knife just when it seems so long you feel the twist of the knife

she'll never be free
and i'll never be right
i can't help but wonder why
and it takes so long
so fucking long
i just can't make to (...)

eat you down by the railway track we can make a man's but when im looking into your eyes and i can see we can't be friends one way right so wrong (?)
how can everything die
you put your fingers to a p(...) stone it's gone in a blink of an eye

and i'll never be right
(...)
i can't hold you free
watching gone (...)
i can hold you free
watching (...)

she'll never be free

(...)
