

Just Until Sundown

Further Seems Forever

Spent too many hours holding up walls
Standing in corners and clenching my jaw
Watching you, watching the ones that I wanted to be
Blaming this all on the moment
Blaming this all on my views
Blaming the mood on the music
Blaming it all on you
All on you and me
Just because you said what you wanted
Doesn't make it right
And just because the moment was heated
Doesn't mean that I wanted to fight
Even though I saw your anger
Even though I saw your face
The words that you cited were chosen
Not fate, not spoken in haste
All on you and me
Well, just for the moment, just one more time
Just one more second and we'll be just fine
This could be just, just in case it's the last time
Well, just for the moment, just one more time
Just one more second and we'll be just fine
This could be the last time
Just until sundown
Just one more day I could hold you
That I could hold you
Just until sundown
Just one more day I could hold you
Without you pushing me away
All on you and me
