

Morning

Wet Wet Wet

It's the same old situation
Same old faces, but a different town
Nowhere to run to and nowhere to hide
I'm dancing with my shadow, in the cold moonlight And I can't wait until the morning
And I can't wait another minute, hour, day or night
And I can't wait until the morning
You know it won't feel so cold It's 5 a.m. and I just got into bed
And the heart of the city is almost gone
And I know what is right and I know what is wrong
I'm dancing with the shadows, in the cold moonlight And I can't wait until the morning, oh
And I can't wait another minute, hour, day or night
And I can't wait until the morning
You know it feels so cold Sometimes in between my dreams at night
I walk alone, I'm going underground
And in the distance I can hear a crowd
It makes me wonder what it's all about, all about, all about It's the same old consolation
Different faces but the same old town
Nowhere to run to and nowhere to hide
I'm dancing with my shadow, in the cold moonlight And I can't wait until the morning
(I can't wait until the morning)
And I can't wait another minute, hour, day or night
And I can't wait until the morning
You know it feels so cold, it feels so cold And I can't wait until the morning
(Yeah, yeah, yeah)
And I can't wait another minute, hour, day or night
And I can't wait until the morning
You know it feels so cold, it kind of feels so cold I can't wait until the morning, no, no, no
And I can't wait another minute, hour, day or night
And I can't wait until the morning
