

Porcelain

Snake! Snake! Snakes!

It came up at night as she grabbed at me she said lets take a walk round the block though it seems shes changed I follow her out into the town
I tell her when we get there wake me up when the world has changed

I broke my wings settled down for shoes took a while to finally settle down though the world has changed I start runnin and pack up my bags and took what things I had left to make a break from this town in the mornin and when we play games out in the dark into a world that's changed

I'm breaking out on my own feet I'm finally going to make it out the world has changed and starts from nothing I feared I'd need and when this pain comes crashing down we can make friends in the next town in the mornin

Save your breath and troubles for those who care we can make friends in the next town in the morning and if we play games out in the dark
