

Kremlin Dusk

Utada

All along I was searching for my Lenore
And the words of Mr Edgar Allen Poe
Now I'm sober and never more
Will the raven come to bother me at home? Calling you, calling you home
You, calling you, calling you home By the door you said, "You had to go Couldn't help me any, anymore"
This I saw coming long before
So I kept on starin' out the window Calling you, calling you home
You, calling you, calling you home I am a natural entertainer
Aren't we all holding pieces of dying ember?
I'm just trying to remember who I can call
Who can I call? Ohh, calling you, calling you I run a secret propaganda
Aren't we all hiding pieces of broken anger?
I'm just trying to remember, who I can call
That I can Born in a war of opposite attraction
Or is it or is it a natural conception?
Torn by the arms in the opposite direction
So is it, or is it a modernist reaction? Born in a war of opposite attraction
Or is it or is it a natural conception?
Torn by the arms in the opposite direction
So is it, or is it a modernist reaction? Is it like this? Is it always the same?
(Born in a war of opposite attraction)
When a heartache begins, is it like this?
(Torn by the arms in the opposite direction)
Do you like this? Where you always the same?
(Born in a war of opposite attraction)
Will you come back again? Do you like this?
(Torn by the arms in the opposite direction)
So is it, or is it a modernist reaction? Is it always the same
And will you come back again?
Do you like this?
Oh, do you like this? Is it like this? Is it always the same?
(Born in a war of opposite attraction)
(Or is it or is it a natural conception?)
If you change the phone numbers, would you tell me?
(Torn by the arms in the opposite direction)
(So is it, or is it a modernist reaction?) Is it like this? Is it always the same?
When a heartache begins, is it like this?
If you like this, will you remember my name?

Will you play it again, if you like this?
